SPRINGER LINK

Log in

Menu   Search   Cart

Home   Aerospace Systems   Article

Hybrid convolutional neural network (CNN) for Kennedy Space Center hyperspectral image

Original Paper   Published: 18 November 2022   6, 71–78 (2023)

Download PDF ⤓

Access provided by Swami Keshvanand Institute of Technology Management and Gramothan

Aerospace Systems

Aims and scope

Submit manuscript

R. Anand, Bilal Khan, Vinay Kumar Nassa, Digvijay Pandey ✉, Dharmesh Dhabliya, Binay Kumar Pandey & Pankaj Dadheech

👁 197 Accesses   ❝ 4 Citations   Explore all metrics →

Cite this article

Abstract

The upgradation in Deep learning has enabled us to use the advantage of classification techniques into hyperspectral image for analysis of variety of image bands. In recent works, convolutional neural network (CNN) are predominantly used for visual processing of data and its classification. Hyperspectral image classification deals with both spatial and spectral