From Editor's desk

It is my privilege to be associated with the NSS unit of SKIT. I am proud enough to say that our volunteers are admirably adhering to the NSS Motto of "NOT ME BUT YOU" and trying their best to bring positive changes around the society through different activities. The NSS unit of the college is the most active student unit in and outside the campus; which starts from the first day of admissions and goes on till the last working day of the session; and their zeal to continue working, despite the limitations that come with the shift to digital platforms, is admirable. Today I can confidently say that the contribution of our NSS volunteers is limited to some specific celebrations; rather it has now become a daily affair.

The session 2020-21 was extraordinary, in more ways than I can articulate. As the world grappled with an unprecedented health crisis, NSS also had to quickly adapt to carrying out its functions via the digital platform. Throughout the year, we as a team had to navigate through the challenges posed by the pandemic... from conducting online fundraisers to having meetings on Zoom; we somehow managed to find our rhythm. In a world where social distance had become the norm, we managed to form connections with each other, bound by our shared commitment to do our bit for societal upliftment through NSS. We may have been apart physically; however, today the team shares fond memories as well as a sense of kinship towards each other.

The pandemic has also brought the conversation around mental health to the forefront. While talking about mental health is largely taboo in our country, the uncertainty, undue stress, and constant pressure to be productive amidst the chaos have plagued our society as the pandemic tightened its grip over the country. And these challenges need to be considered more seriously in the wake of a devastating second wave, as we continue to collectively struggle to come to terms with its aftermath. This might also be the best time to explore various policy options including creating online mental health awareness. I believe that there needs to be a road map for mental health awareness, one that includes the traditional media, government programs, the education system, and social media. As a reminder to be kinder to not just those around us but also to ourselves.

The office-bearers and volunteers have played a very crucial role in ensuring the elevation of social contributions of NSS SKIT and I express my sincere gratitude to them for enabling the objectives of NSS to become ground realities. I would also like to congratulate the editorial team for bringing this new issue of PRAHAR to the readers. I wish the volunteers the very best for their future!
