About the Workshop

The goals of this workshop are to introduce participants to the various types of alternative investments, and to illustrate how individual investors can use these assets to improve the risk and return performance of their portfolios. Investors are generally familiar with traditional asset classes such as equity and fixed-income, but are often unaware of other asset classes such as real estate, commodities, private equity, hedge funds, managed futures and others. These alternative asset classes can be added to core portfolios of equity and fixed-income to augment expected returns and/or reduce volatility. Moreover, new products such as alternative asset class ETFs put alternatives within reach of most investors. The economic and market volatility of recent years has shaken our confidence in our ability to secure a comfortable retirement. This workshop teaches participants how to estimate their financial needs during retirement to maintain their desired lifestyle, and how to structure their investment portfolio to meet those needs consistently with their tolerance for financial risk. It provides guidance on how to determine an appropriate asset allocation and create an implementation plan based on retirement goals. We'll discuss also how to factor into your retirement investment planning other resources available to you such as Social Security and pension benefits.
